1

IHS can help you to understand the global threat landscape

IHS terrorism events data delivers a comprehensive and reliable view of terrorist and insurgent activity around the world. With over 100 events captured daily and an extensive historical archive, IHS can help you to analyze trends, quantify current threat levels and plan for the future.

In addition, IHS terrorism and insurgency group profiles provide detailed insight into the aims and objectives, areas of interest, tactics and other critical intelligence regarding active non-state armed groups around the world – providing you with essential context with which to qualify the threat.

IHS can help you to identify and minimize risk

The best antidote to risk is information, and IHS delivers comprehensive and reliable terrorism and insurgency information that enables you to plan and make decisions from a position of knowledge.

IHS terrorism and insurgency data, information and intelligence provides a global view of the current and historical risk from non-state armed groups, fusing huge volumes of event-driven data with detailed qualitative intelligence to enable you to identify, qualify and quantify critical risk factors – and to mitigate against them.

IHS can help you to take control of large and complex data

With hundreds of terrorism and insurgency events occurring every day around the world, data can quickly become unmanageable. The volume of data is overwhelming, and crucial high-value information can easily become lost in the noise.

IHS provides ways of filtering and distilling large and complex terrorism and insurgency data sets into meaningful, actionable intelligence, and IHS tools, platforms and services enable clients to visualize data and reveal new insights into critical global issues, trends and developments.

IHS can help you to verify and validate classified sources

IHS analysts record, verify and validate over 100 global terrorism and insurgency events every day, using a methodology that maximizes accuracy: the use of primary sources wherever possible, and independent corroboration in the event that primary sources are not available.

As such, IHS delivers the most reliable open-source terrorism and insurgency data, information and intelligence available – meaning that Intelligence Analysts can rely on IHS content to verify and validate classified sources – such as HUMINT – in order to support critical intelligence reporting, sharing and dissemination.

GLOBAL DISORDER

IHS can help you to monitor areas outside of your core focus

IHS analysts monitor news, media and other information sources all over the world in order to capture terrorism and insurgency events and process information into meaningful, actionable intelligence. This approach delivers a truly global view that extends far beyond the prominent 'usual suspects' to reveal new and emerging threats.

IHS represents an additional intelligence resource that enables you to focus on your core areas of interest confident in the knowledge that you have immediate access to reliable independent intelligence on your secondary and non-priority areas of interest.
